Paper processing

- The paper is screened by the Executive Editor and the Chief Editor for meeting the basic requirements and checked for the plagiarism using Plagiarisma and other recommended services. The papers that passed screening are assigned to the Editorial Board members for reviewing. The corresponding author is notified by the Executive Editor within 3 working days whether the paper is accepted for the review.

- The paper is studied by two independent experts, at least one of them being a member of the Editorial Board, for double-blind peer-review. They provide the Executive Editor their comments and recommendations to accept/reject the paper according to the review form. The decision is made by the Editorial Board, which may request additional review in case of controversy.

- The reviewing normally takes 3–4 weeks, and then the author is notified about the results and is provided with the reviewers' comments to be addressed in the final version of the paper. Detailed comments may be provided within the text of the paper.

- If the author does not agree with the comments or cannot accomplish the final version within 2 weeks, he/she should contact the Executive Editor who is responsible for coordination.

- The corresponding author is responsible for assuring that all his/her co-authors checked the final version and signed the last page as their consent for publishing. A copy of the signed last page should be returned as a photo-copy or a scanned copy by the email.

- Authors retain copyright and publishing rights without restrictions with an acknowledgement of the initial publication in this journal.
